and international organizations classified military information under the circumstances described in the Enclosure. Unless otherwise stated, you may disclose this information only to the foreign governments and international organizations within your geographic or functional area of responsibility. You may further delegate this authority to your subordinate commanders whenever it is applicable and appropriate to do so. Accordingly, a designated disclosure representative should be appointed in writing. A copy of the appointment memorandum will be provided to the Joint Staff National Disclosure Policy Committee member, WMD Division, Directorate for Strategic Plans and Policy (J-5), 5115 Joint Staff Pentagon, Washington, D.C. 20318-5115.

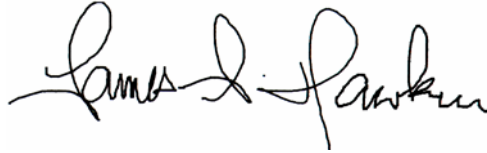

b. Disclosure authority delegated by this memorandum pertains only to classified military information that meets the disclosure limitations, authority levels, criteria, and conditions stipulated in the “National Policy and Procedures for the Disclosure of Classified Military Information to Foreign Governments and International Organizations” (NDP-1). NDP-1 constitutes the national policy and procedures for disclosing classified US military information to representatives of foreign governments and international organizations; however, NDP-1 by itself does not authorize the actual disclosure of this information.

5. Responsibilities. To improve coordination in disclosure matters within combatant commands, commanders are encouraged to share this and other disclosure delegation information with their component commanders.

6. Summary of Changes. This updated instruction includes a complete list of references and office symbols and deletes references to “Commander-in-Chief.”

7. Releasability. This instruction is approved for public release; distribution is unlimited. ENCLOSURE A

DELEGATION OF AUTHORITY TO COMMANDERS OF COMBATANT COMMANDS TO DISCLOSE CLASSIFIED MILITARY INFORMATION TO FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS AND INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

1. The commander of a combatant command may disclose:

a. Classified US military information for which the command is the originating component (see paragraphs 2 and 3 for exclusions and restrictions) to allied or other friendly foreign governments and international organizations within his geographic or functional area of responsibility.

b. Under conditions of actual or imminent hostilities, US classified military information, through TOP SECRET, to an actively participating allied force when support of combined combat operations requires the disclosure of that information.

c. Information that has originated wholly within the command and involves joint command operational matters required for combined operations and exercises with military forces of allied nations.

2. Exclusions

a. General. The commander may NOT disclose information that has originated within a component command and pertains to purely single-Service matters such as organization, training, doctrine, combat developments, and research, developments, and technical information on weapon systems.

b. Subparagraph 1c, Above. The commander may NOT disclose:

(1) Joint Staff military capability information or information from the Joint Strategic Planning System, or Joint Operations Planning and Execution System. Distribution of this information will be in accordance with CJCSI 5714.01B, 1 April 2005.

(2) Operational information received by a component commander from a Service, unless this information also pertains to the mission of the combatant commands under the Unified Command Plan.

3. Restrictions. As noted earlier, all disclosures of classified military information must comply with requirements of references a and b. Additionally, disclosure of classified military intelligence information must also be in compliance with reference c.
